THE RIDE OF COLLINS GRAVES. AN INCIDENT OF THE FLOOD IN MASSACHUSETTS, ON MAY 16TH, 1874.

BY JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

From the Boston Pilot. No song of a soldier riding down To the razing fight from Winchester town: No song of a time that shook the earth With a nation's throe at a nation's birth; But the song of a brave man free from fear As Sheridan's self or Paul Revere; Who risked what they risked, free from strife And its promise of glorious pay—his life.

The pear-eful valley has waked and stirred, And the answering echoes of life are heard; The dew still clings to the trees and grass, And the early tollers smiling pass,
As they glance aside at the white-walled he Or up the valley, where merrily comes
The brook that sparkles in diamond rills As the sun comes over the Hampshire hills,

What was it, that passed like an omino Like a shiver of fear or a touch of death? What was it? The valley is peaceful still, And the leaves are aftre on top of the hill; t was not a sound, nor a thing of sense-But a pain, like the pang of the short suspense That wraps the being of those who see At their feet the gulf of Eternity!

The air of the valley has felt the chill; The workers pause at the door of the mill; The housewife, keen to the shivering air. Arrests her foot on the cottage stair, Instinctively taught by the mother-love. And thinks of the sleeping ones above!

Why start the listeners? Why does the course Of the mill-stream widen? Is it a horse? Hark to the sounds of his hoofs, they say, That gallops so wildly Williamsburg way? God! what was that like human shrick From the winding valley? Will nobody speak?
Will nobody answer those women who cry
As the awful warnings thunder by?

Whence come they? Listen! And now they The sounds of the galloping horse-hoofs near; They watch the trend of the vale, and see The rider, who thunders so menacingly.
With waving arms and warning scream,
To the home filled banks of the valley stream, He draws no rein, but ne shakes the street With a shout and the ring of galloping feet, And this is the cry be flings to the wind: To the hills for your lives! The flood is

He cries and is gone: but they know the worst-The treacherous Williamsburg dam has burst! The basin that nourished their happy homes Is changed to a demon-it comes! it comes!

A monster in aspect with shaggy front Of shattered dwellings, to take the brunt Of the dwellings they shatter—white-maned and hoarse, The merciless terror fills the course Of the narrow valley, and rushing raves, With Death on the first of its hissing waves, Till the cottage and street and crowded mill

But onward still. In front of the roaring flood is heard, The galloping horse and the warning word. Thank God that the brave man's life is spared! From Williamsburg town he nobly dared To race with the flood and to take the road In front of the terrible swath it moved. For miles it thundered and crashed behind, But he looked ahead with a steadfast mind; They must be warned!" was all he said. As away on his terrible ride he sped.

When heroes are called for, bring the crown To this Yankee rider: send him down On the stream of time with the Curtius old: His deed as the Roman's was brave and bold, And the tale can as noble a thrill awake, For he offered his life for the people's sake.

SEASIDE GOLDEN-ROD. Greceful, tossing plume of glowing gold, Waving lonely on the rocky ledge; Leaning seaward, lovely to behold, Clinging to the high cliff's ragged edge;

Burning in pure September sky, Spike of gold against the stainless blue, Do you watch the vessels drifting by? Does the quiet day seem long to you?

Up to you I climb, oh perfect shape!
Polsed so lightly 'twixt the sky and sea;
Looking out o'er headland crag and cape,
O'er the ocean's vague immensity.

In earth's joy what may your portion be? Rocked by breezes, touched by tender light, Fed by dews and sung to by the sea!

Matters not to you. O golden flower! That such eyes of worship watch your sway; But you make more sweet the dreamful hour, And you crown for me the tranquil day.

London Quiver. Swathed in deep bloom upon the lea, One radiant Summer came and went; One Summer's radiant hours we spent Together on the bank of Dee.

Our perfect love far banished strife, And loy and beauty filled the land— I little thought of golden sand— Fast dropping from her glass of life.

We walked among the sheltering firs, And saw the hills of purple heath— I did not see the bue of death Slowly stealing over that smile of hers.

I only dreamt of wealth of life, In one bright round of happy love; And age that should at last remove In calm an old man and his wife. Alas! it is not as I dreamed!

My waking soul laments the change; And all the happy past is strange, And seems as if it only seemed. One sweet, short Summer come and gone-sum was improperly expended, but it finds that this department is not an exception in this regard, but that similar expenditures are made in all the departments, and that all of them for many years past have been accustomed to make similar expenditures. The committee is of the opinion that in this, as in other departments, a larger amount has been expended in fitting up rooms than the condition of the country will justify. The practice which has grown up in all departments of expending considerable sums for knives and gold pens, to be given as Christmas or New Year's presents to sub-ordinates or others should be discontinued. The committee is not agreed as to the propriety or legality of heads of departments having suitable car lages and horses to answer their purposes of going hither and thither upon official business and to be kept at the expense of the government, yet its members are agreed that these should be used in any way disconnected from offi-cial business, that large expenditures for these matters should not be tolerated and that the amount to be expended for these things should be especially provided by an appropriation. The practice of expend-ing considerable sums of the contingent fund to purchase contracts, should be discontinued and such things should never be purchashed unless authorized by law. Small as these things are they are evidences of extravagance which should not now be tolerated when the people are so heavily taxed and when all of our expenditures should be as small as the good of the public service will permit. The committee is satisfied that a considerable sum could be saved in the department of justice for stationery and official supplies if the person whose duty it is to make these purchases would advertise for bids to furnish such articles.

TO BUSINESS MEN: A good advertise ment in a widely circulated newspaper is the best of all possible salesmen-one who never sleeps, and is never weary; who goes after business early and late; who accosts the merchant in his store, the scholar n his study, the lawyer in his office, the lady at her breakfast table; who can be in a thousand places at once, and speak to thousands of people every week, politely and agreeably, saying to each one the best thing in the very best manner.

A good advertisement insures a business connection on the most PERMANENT and INDE-

T PENDENT basis, and is, in a certain sense, a GUARANTEE to the CUSTOMER of fair and moderate prices. Experience has shown that the dealer, whose wares have obtained a public celebrity, is not only enabled to sell, but is forced to sell, at reasonable rates, and in all cases to furnish as good an article as represented.

dealer can make no better investment than in the advertising columns of a popular newspaper. A good advertisement in a widely circulated newspaper is the very best salesman.
